

I strongly believe that satellite radio is a good competitive alternative to traditional radio traffic updates and should continue to be allowed to do so. I use Instant traffic and weather for up to date information on traffic in the Southern california area. Because of my job, I travel within the LA/Orange County/San Diego areas every day. When traffic hits, it takes a long time to surf through the radio stations trying to find one that happens to be giving traffic updates at that time. But with Satellite radio, I can quickly get an update and make a decision on which route to take to my destination. Thanks.